Ask HN: Validation of my CV? - fredoliveira Hey,I'm working on my CV for a while and this is the first time that someone asks me about it.The reason I'm asking is that I'm really interested in the HN community and in the credibility of the site. I've found a lot of people on HN that have very good knowledge of a lot of technical topics and this site is a good representation of that. This seems to be a place where everybody has something to contribute.I find the community very honest and I find it very interesting to read comments like the one below: I'm in the beginning of my life as a programmer, I'm not sure about some aspects of this community and I'm a bit skeptical about some statements.For example, I find it odd that many people on HN have an abundance of technical skills and would make outrageous claims if they weren't actually backed up by experience. I'm sure there are a lot of people in real life that know more than me in technical topics, but those people are probably not here on HN.Do you agree with that assessment? ===== stephengillie I think you're taking it too literally. I have seen posts from people on HN that are way better informed than me on a topic, but haven't commented. I'm sure they have practical life experience and real world knowledge that puts them in a position to know the facts and see things clearly. You can build your own little version of HN, populated by people who know things for the expertise they claim, and you can build a _really_ HN by reading carefully and implementing HN's policies on your own. HN takes a lot of time for me to read, 2d92ce491b
