Q: How to create named schedule So I want to have a code that can be executed at specific times and I want to name it. The closest I got was `schedule.groovy`. How do I create a named schedule to be able to reference that schedule as a running at certain time? Thanks
A: Check out Jenkins Java API Scheduler. Example from the link above:

ScheduleBuilder sb = new ScheduleBuilder().withId("my-schedule")
.withDescription("A job that runs once daily.")
.withSchedule("0 0 * * *", "Cron Specification",
"", "").build();
Schedule schedule =
sb.schedule(); // Run the scheduled job
immediately
Schedule.JobManager.run(schedule, new NullProgressMonitor()); // Run the scheduled job at 1:30 PM
schedule.addAction(new StartNowAction());

Schedule.JobManager.run(schedule, new NullProgressMonitor()); (1) Field of the Invention

The invention is in the field of the crimping of tubular covers on electrical connector housings and more particularly to an improved crimping die and method for minimizing degradation of the die due to mechanical stresses incurred during crimping operations. (2) Description of the Prior Art In the manufacture of electrical connectors, for example, that mount on printed circuit boards, housings have typically been pre-molded, the internal conductors of the housing stripped, the connectors inserted and the external housings crimped onto the housings in a separate operation. The crimping operation is performed by placing the connector into the crimping die and pressing the die against the connector. Typically, a crimping die consists of a pair of opposing dies that sandwich the connector between them and compress it to form a tubular cover. If the die can be compressed more than once in a single operation, the die is referred to as a multistage die. Typical multistage die constructions consist of two or three separate dies, one for each crim
