Short profile of endogenous PMP22 mutants. Duchenne muscular dystrophy (DMD) is caused by mutations in the X-linked human gene coding for the protein desmin. This mutant protein is present in all muscle cells in DMD, resulting in the progressive destruction of skeletal muscle. The most frequent mutations that are observed in DMD, are deletions of the repeated sequence Gly-Arg-Gly-Asp (GRGD) (for mutated protein domain) in exon 23. We created a novel vector, referred to as RMC vector, in order to selectively express mutant PMP22 proteins in transgenic mice, and can be used to create transgenic mice with different lengths of GRGD repeat deletion. Thus, it can be used as a useful test system for quantifying expression of mutant protein in vivo. Our results demonstrate that the length of GRGD repeat deletion in the transgene can be easily quantified by measuring the levels of protein expressed in vivo. PMP22 mutants with repeat deletion in the transgene were accurately detected by immunohistochemistry, as well as by Western blotting. Furthermore, levels of mutant protein are in direct proportion to the length of deletions in the transgene. Q: Play Frameworks - How is instance variables stored? I am trying to figure out how instance variables are stored in a Play! Frameworks application. For example, lets say I have a user profile stored in the db as follows: CREATE TABLE user_profiles (user_id int NOT NULL, user_name varchar(255) NOT NULL, photo_name varchar(255) NOT NULL, bio text NOT NULL PRIMARY KEY (user_id)); and I have a UserController.scala.html controller as follows: @helper.form(action = routes.UserController.update(), 'class -> "form-horizontal", 'id -> "update_form") { Name:

Lambda Boötis Lambda Boötis (λ Boötis, abbreviated Lambda Boo, λ Boo), formally named Sysiphia, is a star in the northern constellation of Boötes. It is faintly visible to the naked eye with an apparent visual magnitude of 5.08. Based upon an annual parallax shift of 5.60 mas as measured from Earth, it is about 4.6 light years away from the Sun. This object is a G-type main-sequence star with a stellar classification of G1 V, where the luminosity class 'V' indicates that it is chemically peculiar. It is a suspected variable star that ranges in magnitude from 5.18 down to 5.38. The star is 504 million years old with 1.63 times the mass of the Sun. It is radiating about 81 times the luminosity of the Sun from its photosphere at an effective temperature of 5,314 K. We present the first prenatal diagnosis of craniofacial microsomia (CFM) in a fetus with a balanced translocation. A 21-year-old woman became pregnant by in vitro fertilization, and a 26 4/7 weeks' gestation sonogram showed facial malformations consistent with CFM. Fetal karyotyping confirmed a de novo unbalanced t(4;8)(q31;q21) translocation between chromosomes 4 and 8. The fetus was delivered by elective cesarean section at 35 0/7 weeks' gestation and had severe micrognathia, a cleft mandible, poor muscle tone, and abnormal fingers and toes on the right hand. The surgical correction of the other congenital defects was successful. Retrospective review of the sonogram and the fetal karyotype showed an extensive review and diagnosis of intrathoracic and extrathoracic malformations. The karyotype should be analyzed in every case of micrognathia and a shortened fetal trunk, especially in view of
